BRITISH FORCE AXIS RETREAT TO THE NORTH

Mobile Columns Compel Withdrawal of Rommel's Right Flank.

By The Associated Press

CAIRO, July 10—British mobile columns, operating on the right flank of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's Axis army west of El Alamein, have compelled enemy armored forces to withdraw northward, British headquarters announced today.

The British maneuver apparently was a continuation of the rallies the British have been carrying out daily to keep Rommel on the defensive and postpone a showdown in the battle for Egypt.

Allied bombers and fighter bombers, meanwhile, were reported blasting at Axis lines of communication and were credited with destroying more than 50 enemy transport vehicles in one assault.

United States heavy bombers, participating in the RAF operations, ranged over the Mediterranean in search of Axis supply ships and shot down two enemy fighters which attempted to intercept them, British headquarters said.

The announcement reporting Rommel's latest withdrawal said:

"In the southern sector our mobile columns engaged enemy forces, including tanks, and forced them to move northward."

The communique did not specify the size of the forces involved, but apparently the engagement was purely local in character.

Activity Normal

Elsewhere in the L-shaped front, the bulletin said, there was merely "normal artillery and patrol activity" yesterday.

Military advices indicated Rommel's movements have been confined almost entirely to countering threats to his right flank in the week that has elapsed since the British beat off an all-out assault on their positions at El Alamein.

While there was no expectation here that General Sir Claude Auchinleck's harassing tactics might compel Rommel to execute a general withdrawal, the British seemed satisfied they were keeping the Axis chieftain so busy he could not regroup forces for a new offensive.

Against the somber background of the Soviet campaign, the 17-day-old battle of Egypt brought more heartening news for the United Nations. British imperial headquarters indicated that Gen. Sir Claude J. E. Auchinleck was slowly squeezing the Axis invaders into a potential death trap.

Thus, bit by bit, the British appeared to be narrowing Rommel's escape corridor. Dispatches from Cairo several days ago said Gen. Rommel, with his armies exhausted by their 350-mile sweep across the desert from Tobruk, was attempting to build a "wall" to guard his southern flank against British attacks which might ultimately cut off his avenue of retreat to the west.

Fourth Axis Setback

The new Axis setback, indicating growing British strength in the critical struggle for the Nile and the Suez canal, was the fourth since Gen. Auchinleck's revitalized 8th army turned on the invaders at El Alamein a week ago.

Cairo observers said Rommel apparently hoped to avoid a showdown battle for two or three weeks to rest his troops, receive reinforcements and rebuild his striking power.

On the Russian front, Red army headquarters acknowledged a serious situation at Rossosh as the Germans struck ever closer to the Don River, but declared that huge Nazi losses had "compelled the Hitlerite clique to withdraw considerable forces from France and dispatch them to the east."

Views from another standpoint may have been a new call from the British to create a second front in western Europe to relieve strained strength from the Egyptian channel defenses to support the costly drive into southern Russia.

About 1,200 feet of the sewer tunnel blasting project in the east part of Marion has been completed, leaving about 300 feet yet to be blasted, Major John S. Sears, executive officer of the Scioto Ordnance Plant, reported today.

The Hunkin-Conkey Construction Co. is doing the work under an agreement between the ordnance plant and the city involving the use of the city sewer system by the ordnance plant.

Blasting progresses from 40 to 50 feet a day. Huge sewer tile are being laid at a depth of between 20 and 30 feet to connect a large line near Forest street and East Church street with another line at Jefferson and Center.

Their offices are now located on the second floor of the Citizens building at Prospect and Center streets, with the overflow in the Stoltz garage building.

This move will leave only the employment office of the U. S. Rubber Co. in the downtown district. It is located in the Stoltz building. Previously, downtown offices housed the general offices of the U. S. Rubber Co., the Hunkin-Conkey Construction Co., Holabird & Root and the U. S. Army engineers. All have since moved to the site.

OPA POLL LISTS RATIONING PROTESTS

Public Critical of Sugar Handling, But "Cooperative."

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, July 10—Many in Ohio believe rationing unnecessary and protests are vehement against canning sugar regulations, the office of price control conceded today.

The OPA's regional office reported returns from a poll "covering a cross-section of population in Ohio, West Virginia, Kentucky, Indiana and Michigan." Those questioned were asked to give their interpretation of public opinion toward the questions, and not their personal views. The OPA tabulated 627 replies, including 211 from OPA employes, 82 from business men and 112 from housewives, with the remainder largely from white-collar, professional and public official groups.

Responding to the question "what comments do you hear indicating the general reaction to rationing?" 108 reported the public felt it was unnecessary, but 254 said people were "co-operative," 61 reported general belief in its necessity and 138 thought people were unconvinced.

"The poll showed dissatisfaction with canning sugar regulations, and protests were vehement," the announcement said. "The amount was said to be too little, or it came too late, there was too much red tape in getting the allotment and the procedure took up too much of the housewife's time to get it."

TWO FROM MARION GET COMMISSIONS

Become Second Lieutenants in Engineer Corps.

Two Marion men are among the 10 Ohio soldiers to be graduated as second lieutenants, corps of engineers, United States army, in exercises held Wednesday at Fort Belvoir, Va. They are Joseph P. Keegan, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Keegan of 212 Short street, and Robert A. Murphy, son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Murphy of 328 Chestnut street.

Lieutenant Murphy arrived today for a one-day visit with his parents. He was graduated from St. Mary Parochial High school and prior to entering service in March last year was employed with the Marion Steam Shovel Co. He was stationed at Camp Beauregard, La., before entering officers' training last April.

Lieutenant Keegan is a graduate of St. Mary school and the engineering department of the University of Dayton. He enlisted for service in March last year and prior to going to Fort Belvoir for officers' training was stationed at Camp Lee, Va., Fort Dix, N. J., and Fort Bragg, N. C.

Miss Eloise Murphy of Cincinnati, sister of Lieutenant Murphy, attended the exercises, after which she went to Philadelphia, Pa., to be the guest of her sister, Miss Anna Marie Murphy, instructor of student nurses at St. Agnes hospital in that city. She will come to Marion Sunday for a visit before returning to her duties as a nurse at Good Samaritan hospital in Cincinnati.

Two Tires Saved As Fire Destroys Car Near Marion

Two front tires, valuable property these days, were all that were saved when a car owned by Allen Lewis Witzel, 27, of Upper Sandusky, burned about 7:15 last night on Route 43 near Brush Ridge.

Shortly after Mr. Witzel and passersby succeeded in removing the front tires the gasoline tank at the rear of the 1939 coach exploded and made further salvage impossible, the state highway patrol reported.

Defective wiring in the rear of the car caused a small spark to ignite material in the rear compartment, the patrol reported.

Loss was estimated at $600. The wreckage was towed to Upper Sandusky.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, July 10 — The admiralty announced today that a British submarine had sunk a medium-sized merchant ship and a naval auxiliary bound for Libya.

The merchant ship was picked out of a heavily escorted convoy carrying supplies to Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's forces in north Africa and the naval auxiliary ship, unidentified, was also sunk later, a communique said.

AT LEAST 20 DEAD IN MINE EXPLOSION

By The Associated Press

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., July 10—Rescue workers early today located the bodies of 20 men from the Pursglove Company's No. 2 mine, where an explosion and a fire had trapped two crews of miners four and a half miles inside the workings.

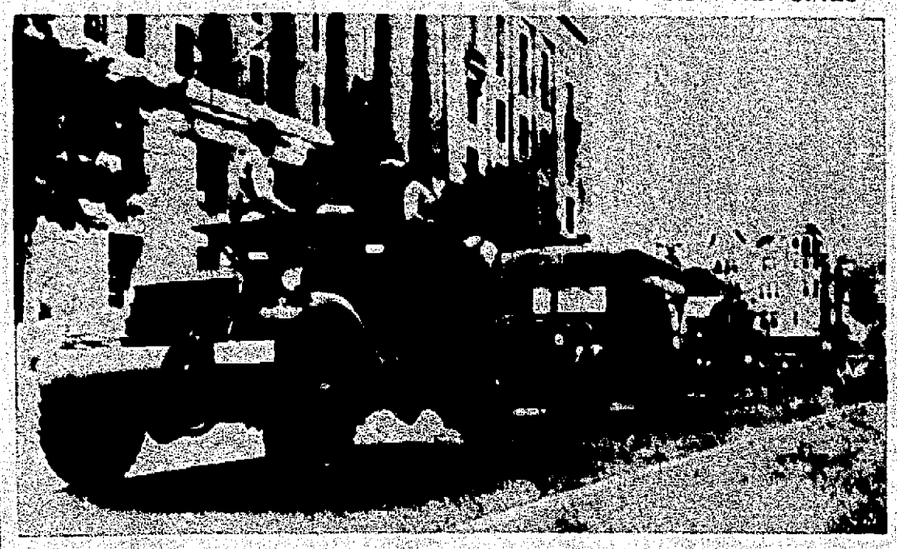
Officials indicated it would be only a matter of hours before the bodies of the men, killed in the blast late yesterday, were taken to the Morgantown mortuary. Eighteen of them have been tentatively identified.

Company officials said 70 of the mine's 300 employes were inside at the time of the blast and that 26 men had been definitely checked off as safe. Many others, however, began aiding the rescue work without reporting their escape.

Within a few minutes after the blast, a silent crowd, including wives and children of the trapped men, gathered to await bits of news reported by runners.

Hampered in efforts to reach the blasted area because of fire, rescue workers believed the explosion victims had been trapped somewhere under the state of Pennsylvania. They explained that the mine, one of the newest operations in the rich Scotch Run field in northern West Virginia, is close to the West Virginia-Pennsylvania line.

ARMED CARAVAN CARRIES EIGHT ON TRIAL AS NAZI SPIES



SECRECY STILL SHROUDS TRIAL

Big Vans Carrying Nazi Prisoners Arrive at Justice Dept. 45 Minutes Early.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 10—The two big vans carrying eight accused Nazi plotters to their life or death trial swung into the justice department courtyard 45 minutes earlier than usual today as the secret proceedings moved one day farther toward a decision on their fate.

Whether the early arrival meant a stepping up of the trial's gait or whether it was just another maneuver to evade the curious was only one of the many questions left unanswered by the military commission's policy of almost airtight secrecy.

Few of those connected with the trial were seen to enter the walled-off area on the fifth floor of the justice department building where the commission is sitting. Apparently the officials came through a maze of inner offices or by private elevators.

War information officials continued their efforts to expand the information available to the public, perhaps by securing the release of two bulletins daily.

The first break in the barrier against publicity which was raised in the interest of national security came late yesterday with the issuance of two brief statements by Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, president of the seven-general trial commission.

The information was limited to a disclosure that the proceeding began on Wednesday with disposal of some "preliminary procedural motions;" that seven witnesses testified during the first two days, and that all participants were sworn to secrecy.

It took a determined effort by Elmer Davis, recently-appointed OWI director, and a conference among President Roosevelt, Secretary of War Stimson and Davis to wrench that much loose.

The military kept a firm grip on the information to be released by providing that it could come only from General McCoy.

There were indications the case being unfolded by the prosecution might have reached the stage of telling the story of the chase and capture of the German-born prisoners, who were trained in sabotage at Berlin.

Probably 20 Witnesses

An official who may have been familiar with prosecution plans prior to the trial, but who declined to permit use of his name, intimated that no more than a score of witnesses would be called and that, at the present rate, the government might complete its case by Saturday night.

If that occurred, the trial could be ended very quickly thereafter, since there was some intimation that much of the defense case might be presented through cross-examination of prosecution witnesses.

Meanwhile, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover gave a strong implication that persons who aided the men after they arrived in this country might be tried on treason charges.

Speaking on the radio (NBC) last night, Hoover declared that "those who gave them (the eight Nazis) aid were traitors. Traitors shall not become gentlemen."

Some persons who aided the eight men already have been arrested, but no official disclosure of their number or identity has been made.

Despite the massive outpour of official communications, it was impossible to conjecture on the course of the proceeding since the administration placed upon the

IMPLEMENT DEALERS HEAR OPA SPEAKERS

Farm Equipment Men of Area at Marion Session.

One hundred and seventy members of the Ohio Farm Equipment Association heard OPA officials from the Cleveland office interpret the price ceiling as applied to farm implement dealers last night at a dinner meeting in Hotel Harding.

The speakers were James R. Floyd and J. M. Sweatland, both field representatives of the office of price administration.

The educational program being conducted in connection with the ceiling control was outlined by Mr. Sweatland. He emphasized especially the efforts being made to keep farm machinery dealers in touch with the latest administrative methods of the OPA.

Mr. Floyd spoke to the dealers concerning price regulation No. 133, the section which deals specifically with the ceiling on farm machinery. He gave a detailed summary of the rules and regulations which apply directly to the farm implement dealer.

At the speakers' table also were J. H. Hardgrove of Columbus, secretary of the organization, and Fred Dutt of Marion, president. Members of the association present represented the central Ohio district.

Mr. Sweatland said the meeting was the first one of a series designed to interpret details of the ceiling regulations to dealers in the area covered by the Cleveland office. That area includes Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Kentucky and West Virginia.

The talks by the Cleveland men were followed by an informal question and answer period.

COMPANY DEVELOPS NEW TUBELESS TIRE

Pneumatic Device for Heavy Vehicles Only Announced.

By The Associated Press

AKRON, O., July 10—Development of a tubeless pneumatic tire for heavy vehicles was announced here today by Frank A. Collyer, president of the B. F. Goodrich company.

Unlike a special device for locking motion when the tire is in the rough, the new tire effects an improved bearing in rubber by dispensing with the ordinarily required bead and flaps.

While the amount of rubber saved by the new development varies depending upon the size of the tire, Collyer stated that the minimum was approximately seven per cent of the rubber content of the conventional pneumatic tube and flap combination.

Collyer said that although substantial war returns obtained by the company demonstrate the [illegible]

CONFER MEDAL ON ADMIRAL C. W. NIMITZ

Decoration Ceremony Is Held Aboard Warship.

By The Associated Press

A WEST COAST PORT, July 10—The navy disclosed today that the distinguished service medal had been conferred upon Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the United States Pacific fleet.

Admiral Nimitz was decorated by Admiral Ernest J. King, commander-in-chief of the United States fleet, at a short but impressive ceremony aboard a United States warship.

The honor was conferred for exceptionally meritorious service since the outbreak of the war with Japan, particularly in connection with the battle of the Coral Sea and Midway Island. American naval forces dealt heavy blows to Nipponese sea power in both these encounters.

In a one-minute speech of acceptance, Admiral Nimitz said the achievements behind the award were due to "the devoted service of the men under my command—the task force commanders, the junior officers and the rank and file—a loyal and devoted crew."

NEW CEILING LAW STOPS CUSTOM SLAUGHTERING

Amended To Eliminate Possibility Of Evasion.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 10 — The new price ceiling on beef and veal carcasses and wholesale cuts, effective July 13, has been amended to eliminate the possibility of evasion through the practice of "customer slaughtering."

"Custom killing," by which is meant the slaughtering of cattle as a service for the purchaser of the live animals, does not involve a sale of the dressed carcass by the slaughterer. The latter either buys the animal for the purchaser's account or receives it after his customer has bought it. The usual compensation for custom killing is the hide and offal.

The new amendment requires a slaughterer who kills for the purchaser must remit to the purchaser an amount sufficient to equalize the purchaser's cost in acquiring the carcass. The equalization figure is the maximum price at which the slaughterer could have sold the carcass to the purchaser.

Another provision of the amendment requires each seller, in computing his maximum prices for fores and hinds separately, to adjust those prices so as to prevent the total price from exceeding the maximum permitted for a whole carcass.

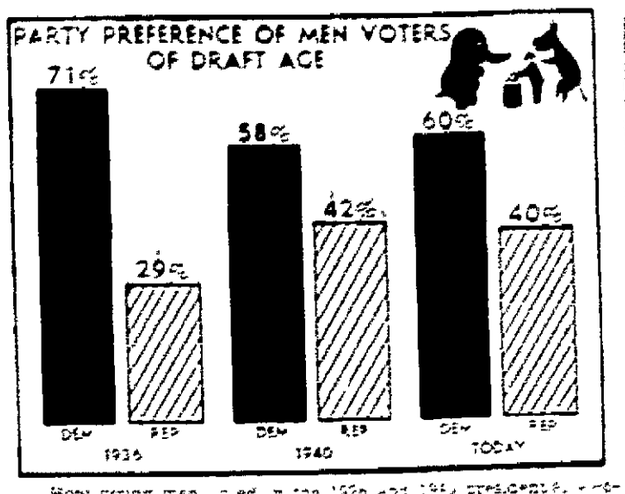
Men in Service Present New November Election Problem for Democrats



How young men voted in the 1936 and 1940 presidential elections and how they say they intend to vote this fall, is shown in the results of the Gallup Poll illustrated above.

By GEORGE GALLUP

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., July 10—Here is a factor which will worry the high command of the Democratic party as it studies prospects for the November elections.

If the men in the armed forces, now totaling an estimated three million, do not take the time or trouble to fill out absentee voter ballots, it is the Democrats who will suffer.

In fact, the absence of these young men may spell the difference between victory and disaster for the Democrats in many closely contested election races.

Modern sampling polls, being analytical by their very nature, can discover how all age levels voted in the last election and how they plan to vote in forthcoming elections. From such analysis comes the fact that men between the ages of 21 and 35—the draft age—are predominantly democratic in their political party sentiment, and indeed have been since the early days of the New Deal.

The meaning of this to the Democrats for the 1942 elections is clear. Absentee voting in the armed forces presents many complicated problems and in some cases conflicts with state election laws. As judged by the Institute's studies, out of every 100 men in the armed forces who do not take the trouble to vote, the Democrats will lose 60 votes whereas the Republicans will lose only 40.

And the more men drawn into the armed forces, the more voters will be lost by the Democrats.

The loss or reduction of the Democratic young vote might have important repercussions in various individual states and congressional districts.

There are, for example, 53 Democratic seats in the house which were won by majorities of 50 through 55 per cent of the majority party vote in 1940. Democratic losses of but a few per cent in these areas could swing many of these seats to the Republicans.

Eight states in the 1940 presidential election were carried by the Democrats with majorities of only 50 to 53 per cent of the major party vote. Only a very slight Democratic defection would shift these states to the Republicans in subsequential races.

The problem of enabling soldiers to vote has been engaging the attention of state officials for some months. It is felt that some simplified system can be worked out. At present the procedure varies from state to state and is cumbersome and involved in most cases.

In Ohio, for example, ballots cannot be printed until 30 days before election. This does not allow sufficient time to ship ballots to England or Australia and get them back again.

MRS. MURDOCK TAKES A CASE

CHAPTER TWENTY
Man In The Dark

"He's going to telephone first," Fenner said. "He'll make a date either to come for the envelope or ask you to meet him somewhere. He glanced at Delia, smiling. "Either way is okay. When you've given him you'll deliver and then you'll be somewhere where I can find you and that we'll see what happens. Maybe I'll have an idea!"

"But you mustn't take it away from him!" Delia said, alarm showing in her eyes. "He could go to the police."

"I doubt it," Fenner said. "But don't worry about what we'll do when the time comes. After I find out who the guy is and what he's up to with the envelope we'll figure out the next step."

"Oh," Delia said. "You follow me."

"We'll find some way. What's your address?"

Delia gave it and Fenner wrote it down. "I'll be there at eleven thirty in the morning. Okay?"

Joyce gathered her things, exchanged glances with Delia, said, "Well—" and started to rise.

Fenner got up with them, reaching for the remainder of his drink.

"Why don't you finish it?" Joyce asked. "We'll run along but there's no need for you to come if you'd like to stay."

Fenner gave her a grin of appreciation. "All right. I can do my thinking here as well as any place."

"Thanks, Jack," Joyce said. "Good night."

"Good night. See you at eleven thirty."

They left the room and turned down the long corridor.

"Now what do you think?" Joyce asked.

"I'm glad we came," Delia said. "You were right. He will know what to do. He's so—well, I hardly know what to say. I've never known anyone quite like him. There's something about him—something compelling that makes me feel like shivering inside when he looks at you a certain way, and yet I think I like him. I—I'm not quite so worried as I was. . . . Oh there's Uncle Dean. . . ."

They were in the main lobby now and Dean Thorndike was coming towards them from the direction of the elevators. An instant later he spotted them and waved.

"Well," he said, as he removed his hat, "what brings you here? Out for a drink all by yourselves?"

Joyce hesitated, feeling Delia's sidelong glance and deciding not to mention Jack Fenner. The name would mean nothing to Thorndike and if he found out they'd been meeting a private detective there would be other things he'd want to know. If Delia wanted to explain well and good, if not—

"We had just one," she said when she could ignore the awkward silence no longer.

"I had to Cron by and see a fellow," Thorndike said. "Thinks he might want to buy the ketch. I'll buy another drink."

"Thanks, no," Joyce said.

"If you want to drive us home," Delia said, "I might be able to find something for you."

"You came in a cab?" Thorndike said. "All right, I'll run you over."

"Don't Scream"

They stood under the lighted marquee while he went for his car. It was drizzling now and the massive doorman stood by with his umbrella until Thorndike drove up.

Although they rode three in the front seat there was little said until Thorndike slowed down and looked for a parking space in front of Delia's apartment house.

"Will you come up for that drink?" she asked. Thorndike said he didn't think so and Delia added: "Well, would you mind waiting a minute while Joyce comes up? There's something I want to give her."

"All right," Thorndike said. "I'll let you out here."

He stopped in front of the entrance, which was partly blocked off, and reached over to open the door. Joyce and Delia got out and hurried across the sidewalk.

"Do you mind?" Delia asked. "I just had to talk to you a minute and Uncle Dean won't care."

They went up the stairs silently to the second floor; Delia had her key out by the time they reached her door, and, unlocking it, stepped across the threshold into darkness. Joyce was right behind her and light from the hall spilled past them and she saw Delia reach for the wall-switch just ahead.

There was no warning for what happened next, no sound, no intuitive suggestion, nothing. One moment Delia's hand was reaching for the switch; the next the hand had stopped in mid-air and a gruff, deep voice with a snap to it shattered the still blackness ahead of them.

"Don't touch it and don't scream!"

The Envelope

Joyce froze and for the next interminable second her mind was a detached and separate part of her, so that although her body was stiff and incapable of movement, her brain raced and her perceptions were sharp, clear, and detailed.

Aside from the immediate shock she felt no great fear but only incredulity. Delia had recoiled with the command; now she was like a statue, poised but motionless, her hand fixed in mid-air. Beyond there was nothing but blackness. From it came the next command.

"Put your hand down!"

Slowly, as though with an intense muscular effort, Delia lowered her hand.

"Good. Now come forward. Slowly. Leave the door open so I can see you." The voice was still low, pausing briefly and then snapping out at them. "Move."

For the first time, Joyce felt real fear. She had to obey quickly; Delia too. She closed up behind the girl and put both hands above her hips, guiding her forward as she moved.

"Do as he says, darling."

"Stop there!" the voice commanded. "Good. I'm going down the hall and out the back door. Just remember I can see you all the way. Stand still and stay quiet and you'll be all right."

Joyce could hear the man moving now, the soft slide of his feet across the rug. Try as she might she could not penetrate the darkness and presently even the sound of him was gone.

The next minute was like an hour. She could hear her own breathing; she could hear Delia. There was even time for her thoughts to slide off on a tangent and wonder what might have happened had Dean Thorndike come up with them for that drink.

The sound of a door closing was loud and startling, and even when the silence came again and she knew the man had gone it took her a second or two to force herself to move.

"He's gone," Delia breathed.

"Yes," Joyce said, and turned to the wall switch and snapped it on.

The light was momentarily blinding and she stood blinking at it. Delia was looking at her, her face white and strained, her eyes more startled than afraid. Seconds went by before either of them moved again and then Joyce noticed the secretary. The drawers were pulled part-way out; so was one in the table.

"The envelope!" Delia said.

Abruptly she turned and started for the hall.

CLINIC SUGGESTED ON TRANSPORTATION

Move Made To Clear Up Problems in Marion.

A transportation clinic some time this month to discuss problems the war has created among Marion industrial workers and Marion truckers is being sought by the transportation committee of the Marion Chamber of Commerce.

A letter has been written the Columbus headquarters of the office of defense transportation, requesting that one of its representatives come here and conduct the clinic, Louis E. Michel, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, said yesterday.

The plan is for the ODT man to meet in the afternoon with members of the Chamber of Commerce transportation committee, which is made up of representatives of all industries in the city, the U. S. Rubber Co., which will operate the Scioto Ordnance Plant, and Ray Maag of Marion Rapid Transit, Inc., to go over the transportation problems affecting individual workers in industry.

At night a meeting will be called of truckers in Marion and vicinity to study their problems in the war transportation set-up.

At a June meeting of the transportation committee it developed that local transportation was not an immediate problem, but that transporting workers from surrounding communities to Marion industries and war plants was a major problem.

Since the meeting last month representatives of industries have been surveying the plants to determine the outside communities represented among the workers and to discuss with workers their ideas as to how to handle the situation. Reports of this survey will be presented at the clinic.

NAVY REPORTS NIMITZ IN AIRPLANE CRASH.

Announce Pacific Fleet Commander Escaped Uninjured.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 10—The navy reported today that Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, supreme commander in chief of the Pacific fleet, recently "received serious injury" in an airplane crash on the west coast which cost the life of the plane's copilot.

Nimitz, normally in the Hawaiian area, was on the mainland for a meeting with Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the U. S. fleet and to receive from King the distinguished service medal for his conduct of fleet operations against the Japanese, particularly in the Coral sea and Midway actions.

The plane crash in which Nimitz apparently was gravely injured occurred, the navy said, "at an airfield at a west coast port of the United States."

The copilot killed was Lieutenant Truman Morton, Reno, 28, of Oakland, Calif.

The navy said that in addition to Nimitz, three seriously injured and described Nimitz' injuries as minor and "not sufficient to cause any interruption of his journey."

Nimitz, 57, who has been commander in chief of the Pacific fleet since the relief from that assignment of Admiral Husband E. Kimmel, received this citation from King:

"For exceptionally meritorious service as commander in chief, U. S. Pacific fleet. In that position of great responsibility he exercised sound judgment and decision in his employment and disposition of units of the Pacific fleet during the period immediately following our entry into war with Japan. His conduct of the operations of the Pacific fleet, resulting in successful actions against the enemy in the Coral Sea in May, 1942, and off Midway Island in June, 1942, was characterized by unfailing judgment and sound decision, coupled with skill and vigor. His exercise of command on all occasions left nothing to be desired."

CHINESE ANNOUNCE NEW JAP SETBACKS

Report Invader's Latest Rail Push Repulsed.

By The Associated Press

CHUNGKING, July 10 — The Chinese high command today announced the recapture of Changteh, 95 miles southwest of Nanchang, in a new repulse of the Japanese and a sharp setback of the invaders' latest push along the Kiangsi-Hunan province line to Hunan province.

Also recaptured, the Chinese said, was the town of Tsungjen, 77 miles south of the Japanese base at Nanchang.

The high command confirmed Chinese dispatches which reported yesterday that a Japanese force of 20,000 had been ambushed and beaten back to the north and east in heavy fighting in Kiangsi.

The first fruits of that repulse were the recapture of Nanchang, Hwang and Poyang, into which Japanese columns had stabbed from Nanchang and Changjen, border to the east.

The Chinese gave no word on an even larger significance with the reported recapture of Tsungjen, where the Japanese had driven south toward Kwangtung province, and Changteh, where the invaders had reached the Kiangsi-Hunan railway.

The Japanese had taken Changteh early this week in the start of a new phase of their apparent campaign to establish a rail route from Shanghai to Singapore. Their conquest through Chekiang province and into Kiangsi gave them lines from Shanghai to Nanchang.

SMALL BUSINESS AID IS PROPOSED

Legislators Await Testimony of Leon Henderson.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 10—An explanation from Leon Henderson of price regulations on small enterprises, members of a committee voiced general approval today of a proposal for government aid of small business to help them survive during the war.

Chairman Patman (D-Tex) of the small business committee said he would testify next Wednesday and would be asked among other things, for his opinion of the subsidy plan outlined yesterday by Philip D. Reed, head of the industries branch of the war production board.

Reed told the committee that something were done to help approximately 24,000 small industrial enterprises, unable to turn into the war program and lacking materials for civilian production, "will be forced to shut up shop" before October 1."

Of Reed's statement was "very illuminating and merits serious consideration," Patman said. "It is obvious that something must be done, and done quickly. . . .

Thousands of small concerns are the background of our normal economic life and must be preserved. . . ."

Patman conceded that committee-sponsored legislation creating a small war plants corporation to help little concerns obtain war and essential civilian production contracts was not adequate.

The plan outlined by Reed contemplated government defrayment during the war of the minimum fixed charges and maintenance costs of plants forced to close down but unable to operate at a profit because of war production board orders.

Based on normal business volume of $4,000,000,000 annually and fixed charges averaging five percent of the annual business, Reed estimated the cost of the program at $200,000,000.

QUESTIONNAIRES OPEN MANPOWER SUPPLY

New Service Seen As Aid To Ohio War Industries.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., July 10 — A new supply of manpower for Ohio's war industries has been tapped through a study of occupational questonnaires sent to men registered for selective service, Wade Hammond, Ohio director of the U. S. Employment service, reported today.

"A considerable number of the men who have returned questionnaires are trained in critical skills needed by defense industries, although they now are employed in non-essential fields," Hammond asserted.

The service, streamlining its program to meet employment needs of war plants "to the exclusion of all others" wherever necessary, is diverting workers from non-essential to industrial jobs as rapidly as possible, he said.

Listing of domestic help and other unskilled job hunters, once a major portion of the service's program, will become an incidental function and eventually may be abandoned, Hammond declared. The curtailment will be gradual so that firms and individuals previously depending on the service may obtain help from other sources.

"Terrific Cost"

BY ITS own confession, Germany lost 1,500,000 men in the first stage of the Russian invasion, almost as many as its total of mortalities in World war I. When Russian communiques mention German gains at the price of "terrific losses," they are not questioned.

It cannot be doubted that the premise on which the Maginot line reasoning started was sound. Well planned defense can make attack too expensive to be feasible. While it cannot forestall attack nor prevent the possibility of successful attack, it can make the victory too costly.

Germany did not prove that the premise of defense was wrong when it invaded France. It merely proved that the Maginot line was wrong. Russia's method of defense has proved to be better—not perfect but better. It has exacted from Germany a price the Nazis cannot afford to pay. Even if they win, which is doubtful, they will have spent too much.

Since a year ago it has been obvious that the Russians could not keep the enemy from making great gains. The outcome of the war will be determined by Germany's ability to outlast the Russian army in a war of attrition, not by its ability to advance. There is too much room for Russian retreat, always making the Germans pay dearly for their advances. The one thing everybody but the Germans agreed on after World war I has not been disproved: That a defender's ability to make an attacker pay exorbitantly for the privilege of the offensive has increased to the point where war no longer is a feasible instrument of national policy.

Upper Crust

THE most important man in the United States right now is an assembler in a shipyard. Ninety-four are needed for every one who can be found.

An assembler, it may be argued, is more important than the manager of the shipyard, because there probably are enough assistant managers to supply that market. He is more important than a millionaire, a radio star, or a senator.

He is, in short, a member of the upper crust in the United States at this moment. Also in the crust, according to Paul V. McNutt, chairman of the war manpower commission, are approximately 180 other crafts and trades acutely needed at the moment—aircraft riveters, coil winders, crane riggers, armature winders—all the multitudinous special skills that keep an industrial economy in motion. Draft boards are asked to give special consideration to all persons who can do these jobs, on the theory that they are more important working at their trade than they could be learning how to fight.

Once more, as happened when the first occupational questionnaires were circulated, the man who would have to take his place in the production setup as an unskilled laborer, whatever he may be doing at the moment, there is an impact of futility. It isn't strange that in a war of production the most skilled producers should be most important, but it hasn't ceased yet to be mighty uncomfortable for the millions who never learned how to run turret lathes, assemble coils, grind cylinders and caulk boats.

The Virtue of String Saving

DAILY increasing emphasis on conservation in all things is calling attention once more to the virtue of string saving. String now is only one of a long list of things to be saved and used over again, instead of wasted.

It is not amiss in the course of the transition from wasting to saving to wonder what may be the cumulative effect on this prodigal country. While some parts of it, New England, for instance, never took seriously the fallacy that it was cheaper to buy new than to use old, the general tendency has been in that direction for a number of years. A habit of thought and action had been established that will not be easy to overcome as the needs of war call on consumers to save just about everything that comes into their hands.

By the same token that it is not easy now to see the possibilities of savings it will be hard when the saving habit has been strengthened to revert to wastefulness. The ball of string that became a national symbol of frugality—and a source of mild amusement—will be restored to good standing. The point of view that kept it from passing out of the American scene is an asset of extreme value in war production.

News Behind the News

Freezing of Wage-Price Economic Level Faces Many Obstacles.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, July 10—The press has reported earning "on good authority" that the administration is considering legislation to freeze the wage-price economic level hard.

The authority was very good. There is none better. The notion can be traced back to Mr. Roosevelt himself.

His congressional leaders report him worried. He took the matter up with the big four of the house and senate at their last weekly private meeting at the White House, but only in a general way along the same lines he previously had suggested to them.

They did not understand that he had anything immediate in mind, but that he rather generally shares the opinion which his price czar Leon Henderson suggested to a senator recently.

"Something will have to be done."

Meanwhile, wags around congress are popularizing the quip that the immediate problem is to bring the "all-in economy up to the all-out war effort."

While the conversationalists are using "all-in" only facetiously, the problem is growing fast, against only such vernal brakes as the President and Henderson are using.

Congress is inflationary-minded. The farm bloc wants higher prices, not necessarily what they consider inflationary prices, but higher than presently allowed. Labor as always wants wage increases.

Together they represent majority opinion in the legislature. They were the ones who turned down all strong freezing devices in the present price-wage law and limited Henderson's devices.

But you cannot blame it all on congress. The farm bloc justifies itself, for instance, by rightly claiming that the administration policy on labor and wages has also been inflationary.

Furthermore, behind these generalizations, the situation is criss-crossed with innumerable political self-interests. Current White House worry, for instance, is deepened by congressional failure to levy all taxes Mr. Morgenthau wants and by obstreperous antics of the farm bloc on the feed-selling program.

Congressional antagonism to Henderson likewise lies in his failure to give them patronage in his vast organization.

Above all, everyone is conscious and super-sensitive of the coming congressional elections.

It may be some time before anything effective is done.

Financial Touch

Donald Nelson's latest reorganization of his successful war production board did not materially touch one point of inner-criticism—the preponderance of investment bankers and financial business men in his organization.

His personnel assistant happens to be Sidney Weinberg, of Goldman-Sachs, who naturally happens to know practically everyone in Wall Street or in the finance end of corporations, rather than the production end.

The result is one official was able to number on his fingers 18 such men in front WPB positions, the most prominent being:

Cliff Hill, Guaranty Trust Co.; Ed. Locke, Chase National Bank; Arthur Bunker, Lehman Brothers; James S. Knowlson, president, Stewart-Warner; Arthur Newhall, vice president Talon, Inc., and Lessing J. Rosenwald, Rosenwald Foundation.

Wall Street business being what it is, Mr. Weinberg seems to be running a $1 a year unemployment relief program for investment bankers in WPB.

Rubber Drive

The idea that the rubber scrap campaign is somewhat political and has produced little real rubber of use for tires is thoroughly disproved by the detailed results. It is true that old tires and tubes are about the only scrap articles containing sufficient rubber for use in re-capping or making new ones. Some raincoats, shoes and garden hose are helpful.

But most of the other articles contain so little rubber and so much foreign substance, their practical value must fall in other less critical lines.

The evidence shows, however, more than half the scrap rubber acquired comes within the suitable category. From July 1 through the 7th according to the Petroleum War Industry council, 534 carloads of casings and 414 carloads of mixed rubber were shipped out of the bulk storage points to the reclaimers.

Success In West

Extraordinary success of the campaign out west (short of the Pacific coast) is attributed by authorities to two factors:

Public spirited enthusiasm generally runs stronger in those communities than along the more densely populated coast; also reclaiming by junk dealers was more intensive in populous centers before the campaign started. High shipping costs worked against depletion of western stocks.

Stumped

There was an embarrassing moment on the radio the other evening for one of the armed forces in the New York area. During a question and answer program, the military men were given three of Mr. Roosevelt's proposed freedoms for which they are fighting and asked to state the fourth. No one knew.

Apparently some educational propaganda work is needed.

400 Army Newspapers

They Keep Soldiers Informed About Their New "Home Towns"

By JOHN GROVER
Wide World Features Writer

WASHINGTON, July 1—When Pvt. Joe Anybody joins the army he keeps one civilian trait—he still likes to see his name in print.

Four hundred army newspapers—ranging from typewritten handbills to ambitious journals edited by ex-professionals—are keeping Pvt. Anybody and his 2,000,000 comrades posted on the going-on in their military "home towns."

Morale officers say the camp newspapers are doing a whale of a job keeping the soldiery perked up. A rookie begins to throw off his initial homesickness when he begins to reads about his own company or his own regiment. Then he's part of something real. It's like seeing the name of his old firm or his old college.

From then on they're regular readers of the camp paper, and better soldiers. The G's a squawk if any outfit is missed in distribution of the sheet.

Putting out a camp newspaper is a job to make a civilian publisher go quietly nuts. The ordinary problems of publishing are multiplied manyfold. The Fort Meade Post is a typical camp paper, under the supervision of Major Francis E. Lutz.

Rules Revised

Here are some of the problems Major Lutz recalls the Post has had to take in stride.

First, the old who, what, where, when" basis of journalism must be revised and pruned. "Who" and "what" are all right sometimes, but "where" and "when" are out most of the time. Pvt. Anybody might send a copy of the camp paper home, and proud Ma Anybody would probably show it to Mrs. Backfence, who'd tell it to her bridge club. That means the whereabouts of the Upteenth division on such and such a date could become common talk in Berlin.

Getting news from the brass hats is tougher in the Army, too. In civilian life, a reporter can sit on the edge of the mayor's desk and say in effect, "Listen Patty, what gives?" Corporal Reporter can't do that to a camp "mayor," in all probability a major general who's more than somewhat touchy about his rank.

The staffs of most camp newspapers are enlisted men, with officers in very remote control. They operate on the wise assumption that men in the ranks can write the stuff that other men in the ranks want to read. On the Post, there are four enlisted men reporters, who rotate as managing editors, and a photographer.

Really, Leg Men

They're "leg men" in a very real sense. The Army doesn't furnish cars or taxis for soldier-reporters. They hoof from one end of the cantonment to the other. Even during maneuvers in the field, when they performed regular duties the "Post" staff didn't miss an edition—but they had to commandeer a hearse to rush it 300 mile for distribution once.

Keeping a staff together is one of the tough problems of army publishing. The "Post" has graduated half a dozen to officer training schools. Others get sudden orders to move to that "where" that can't be mentioned. Picture the dilemma of a managing editor, just before press time, with half his staff ordered one way and most of his subscribers entraining another.

"X" Division originally was stationed at Fort Meade. It's gone "somewhere" for advanced training. However, the "Post" still remains its "home town" newspaper, and goes to the men regularly every week. "Y" Division is training at Meade now, so the paper contains news both for its "alumni" group and its "undergraduates" still in training there.

The number of papers sent home rooms up when promotion lists are printed. That's when the most names appear. Pvt. Anybody is just like everybody else—he gets a kick out of seeing his name in the paper, and wants his folks to see it, too.

Judas is not the only one who betrayed his friend with a kiss. Beware of hypocrisy, the world loathes insincerity and betrayal. "And when he was come, straightway he came to him and kissed him."—Mark 14:45.

Dutch Impede Nazis

Patriots Use All Means To Hamper War Production.

By J. EDGERTON LEE
International News Service Correspondent.

LONDON, July 10.—"Delay, hold up, slow down."

That is the watchword today of thousands of Dutch civilians, patriots of the underground army. They are forced to work for the Nazis, but they never miss a chance to impede production.

So serious has the situation become for the Germans, according to information reaching London, that Berlin is now sending girl spies into Holland. Posing as Dutch girls, they track down the patriots, who are developing sabotage almost into a science.

These girls, aided by Quislings and others, have been able to trace some of the slow-down artists. In many instances the Dutch patriots have paid with their lives. In one week alone, 96 were executed by the Germans.

Sabotage Is Unchecked.

But the sabotage of production for Germany goes on. "Paper warfare," the Dutch call it. One group of Dutchmen who had to flee, and managed to escape to England, described how the "paper warfare" works.

The Germans, they said, insist on order. They regulate everything by forms. And the Dutchmen used this German trait to gum the works.

One of them told the London Daily Mail:

"The Nazis placed a big order with my firm. My chief had to apply for certain materials at a special bureau which advises Germans on supply problems.

"When the stuff arrived the factory manager suddenly found that he was unable to accept the order, because we were already 'crowded out with work.'

"Back went the materials. The German administration then had to issue a priority note, so that the whole business began again.

Prolonged for Weeks.

"We prolonged this for several weeks until the Germans began to complain. Then we said:

"'It can not be helped—this is Hitler's New Order at Work.'

"Once a consignment of raw materials was dispatched to my factory. They 'vanished' enroute. The manager then wrote letters of complaint to all the German officers involved in the supply.

"They in turn wrote to each other to find out what had gone wrong. It is typical of the chaos we are working in industrial administration."

In mining, they revealed, stones frequently come to the plateaus instead of coal. Stones are permitted to slip through on conveyor belts—to choke German furnaces.

Industrialists Join In.

Dutch industrialists, with grim humor, regard themselves now as devotees of red tape. So much so that many of them refuse to use the telephone. They insist on putting everything in writing. That slows down the Nazis a little more.

Farmers delay harvesting crops. They wait for rain. Then they wait until the crops dry again. By that time the crops are ruined.

Organized sabotage is on the march. Unknown leaders send out instructions to the underground armies. Instruments and weapons are distributed in mysterious ways. Saboteurs are sent to cut telephone wires.

Other groups spy on German coastal concentrations, gathering information against the possibility of an invasion by the United Nations. Still others concentrate on disrupting transport.

For these activities many patriots are killed. Others are held in prison.

But they keep on defying the Nazis.

Air Raid Equipment

By International News Service

CLEVELAND—Phosphorescent buttons may be a solution to the problem of aiding an estimated 50,000 Clevelanders with hearing defects during an air raid, according to L. C. Ruch, executive secretary of the association for the Hard of Hearing.

In England all handicapped persons are furnished with the buttons which are visible in darkness, Ruch said. The buttons also indicate the nature of the wearer's defect, thus aiding air wardens and others who may be assisting during an emergency.

The association is at present carrying on somewhat of a campaign in order to determine, by testing, certain pitches of sound which are heard best by deaf persons. When the results are tabulated the association will instruct the hard of hearing in the way to obtain adjustments for their telephones, doorbells and other sound devices so that their signals are at the most readily heard pitch.

Instruction in the use of hearing aids will also be given with special attention to those who wish to be engaged in some kind of war work.

We Are Told That Gen. Grant Was a Plate Man of America. Outfit for Denture Wearers.

By DAMON RUNYON

ARTHUR PRICE of the editorial department of the San Francisco Examiner reminds me that Gen. U. S. Grant, one of the greatest soldiers in the history of our nation, was a member of the Plate Men of America. This tends to increase my confidence in our current generals and admirals who belong to the same lodge.

It also adds to my admiration of the judgment of the navy officials out here, who ruled recently that good dentures (the polite alias for plates) are no bar to service. I assume that my good dentures the officials mean oral fixtures that fit neatly and firmly in their surroundings and have no reference to the appearance or cost or even the quality of same.

I think they are absolutely right in not attempting to set up any other standard. Some branches of the Plate Men of America insist on its members providing themselves with stand-in gnashers that are pleasing to the eye but I consider this quite snobbish. I do not say that I entirely approve of the kind that look like rows of tombstones in a wheat field, either. I favor a happy medium.

However, I have seen some members of the Plate Men with the tombstone types who could serve a valuable purpose against the enemy. They could sneak up on the foe at night and suddenly expose their gruesome choppers and scare the opposition to death. I know a Plate Man whose wife will not permit him to wear his balcony and orchestra around the house because the sight makes her nervous. He is slowly starving to death for want of solid food.

As all Plate Men are aware, mere cost does not make for a lovely vista of grinders, nor yet for efficiency. The head Plate Man in the United States in the matter of cost is associated with the motion picture industry out here. He is said to have paid $3,500 top and $3,500 bottom, and yet I am reliably informed that when he deals with raspberries or peanuts or similar substances, he has to repair to the nearest hydrant and give his expensive crockery a dunking, which argues a loose fit.

On the other hand, a Plate Man of my acquaintance down in Texas stepped into a store years ago and bought himself a set of rubber teeth for $5 which have served him faithfully ever since, withstanding all tests except the one with caramel candy. However, my friend is in a dilemma now that the government has called for rubber because his political enemies are charging that he is unpatriotic for not tossing his teeth into the jackpot.

Of course we all know that George Washington was a charter member of the Plate Men of America because his synthetic snappers are on display somewhere. The roll of the organization disclose the names of many other great men in the history of the nation including that of Gen. Grant. Mr. Price recalls that the general's teeth are mentioned in one of the many volumes dealing with his life specifically his military adventures while besieging Vicksburg.

GEN. GRANT lost his grinders in the Mississippi during that siege and had to send to St. Louis for new equipment. It is a fact that there was some delay between the time the Father of Waters closed over the general's chewers and the hour of Vicksburg's fall, but I am inclined to doubt Mr. Price's theory that this delay was entirely due to the loss of the teeth.

I can see where a sense of embarrassment or perhaps a feeling of futility as he contemplated the army hard tack of the period may have slightly impeded the general's process of military thought, but in examining into the history of the operation I find no testimony to indicate that he was trying to win Vicksburg by biting the foe.

And yet there is evidence at hand tending to show that after getting his new teeth, Gen. Grant eliminated Vicksburg. Mr. Price thinks there is a moral here and suggests that it is for soldiers and sailors with store teeth to have extra sets made and to send the duplicates to Tokyo and Berlin marked "Hold For Arrival."

Russian Symphony on Film

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK—They boiled 231 pages of sheet music down to 100 feet of microfilm for the transmission of Dmitri Shostakovich's Seventh Symphony from Kuibyshev, Russia, to New York for its first western hemisphere performance.

Because of its bulk and the difficulty of taking it through the Russo-German battle areas, the score was put on microfilm and sent by plane to Teheran, Iran.

From there, it was taken by automobile to Cairo, and then to New York by another plane. In New York, the score was reprinted on special positive paper, and prepared for orchestral use. It will be broadcast by the NBC Symphony Orchestra July 19, under the direction of Arturo Toscanini.

The 36-year-old Shostakovich wrote the symphony—one of the lengthiest in musical history—while the Germans pressed the siege of his native Leningrad.

Churchill Ate His Stew

By The Associated Press

MIAMI, Fla.—Herman V. Hanson Monk, a Miamian who served with the British army in the Boer war, remembers Prime Minister Winston Churchill as a ravenous war correspondent who stowed away a chicken stew which Monk and a friend had prepared for themselves.

"My buddy, a Canadian, and I were bivouacked on a small farm and had just cooked the last scrawny chicken left by the owner," Monk related.

"Just as we were sniffing the aroma mouths watering in anticipation, up walked Churchill accompanied by our captain. They took one smell and ate the entire stew.

"It took bravery, I'll tell you," said Monk, "to take food away from two fellows as hungry as that Canadian and I were. It's always been a matter of pride to me, however, that I had the honor of having cooked a stew for a statesman and fighter like Churchill."

Three years ago Monk wrote to the prime minister, reminding him of the incident. One of his cherished possessions is a letter of thanks from Churchill's secretary.

Fertilizer Needed

(From a Letter in Nature.)

Eighty-three per cent of the soils tested in the field experiments gave significant responses to one or more nutrients; in other words, infertility is likely to be limited by plant-food deficiencies in at least four-fifths of the soils of China. Nitrogen deficiency was most general, next came phosphate deficiency; potash deficiency was uncommon, probably because of the general use of ashes and local manures.

CROWD ON STREETS AT SABOTEUR TRIAL

Spectators line the streets outside the department of justice building in Washington, trying to catch a glimpse of the eight accused Nazi saboteurs, departing in heavily-guarded "black marias" after a day's session before the military commission which is trying them. Necessary government secrecy has been clamped on the trial's proceedings. The death penalty is being asked for the accused men, who were seized by FBI agents after being landed on U. S. shores by submarine. (International News Phonephoto) reached might be gauged by this information:

1. Advices in advance of the trial that the prosecution would require two or three days to present its case.

2. The presence yesterday of witnesses who might be used to picture the background of the accused.

3. Appearance late yesterday of some coast guardsmen, indicating the story had reached the arrival of the first group of Nazis, who rode ashore in a rubber boat from a submarine near Amagansett, L. I., on the morning of June 13. The Nazis are understood to have encountered a coast guardsman shortly after landing.

4. The appearance of a sizable group of FBI agents, who might be describing the search, and capture of the eight men.

Trial Going Smoothly

The trial proceeded smoothly today as far as outward evidences indicated. There was less movement in the corridors outside the walled-off areas on the fifth floor of the justice department building, while the crowds which waited outside the building were considerably smaller.

The second statement from the military commission made public for the first time the full list of officials participating as counsel or assistants for the prosecution and the defense.

It listed the prosecution staff as Attorney General Biddle, Maj. Gen. Myron C. Cramer, judge advocate of the army; Col. F. Granville Munson, Col. John M. Weir, Col. Erwin N. Treusch, Maj. William T. Thurman, Oscar Cox, assistant solicitor general in the justice department; James H. Rowe, the assistant to the attorney general, and George T. Washington and Lloyd N. Cutler of the justice department.

The defense staff was named as Col. Cassius M. Dowell, Col. Kenneth Royall, Col. Carl M. Ristine, Maj. Lauson H. Stone and Capt. William Hummell.

The statement noted that the prosecution also was being assisted by J. Edgar Hoover, FBI director, and these officials of the FBI: Clyde A. Tolson, E. J. Connelley, D. M. Ladd, W. R. Glavin, Thomas J. Donegan and C. J. Nelson.

CLAIM COMMUNIST PARTY IS PATRIOTIC

Suit To Get Candidates on Ballot Starts Today.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., July 10—Claims the Communist party is patriotic were presented to the Ohio supreme court today in the party's suit to compel Secretary of State John E. Sweeney to place the party's candidates on the ballot.

Sweeney has ruled the Communist party advocates the overthrow of the government by force and has ruled it off the ballot.

Court arguments today were on the party's appeal from Sweeney's decision.

E. G. Schuessler and Richard Gerkin, counsel in the attorney general's department, sought dismissal of the appeal on the ground no notice of appeal had been filed with the secretary of state as required by law. Members of the court indicated they considered this a serious defect in the attempt to appeal.

Mrs. Yetta Land of Cleveland, chairman of the Ohio Communist party, and her son, Jerome contended notice of the appeal had been served on the attorney general, the legal representative of the secretary of state, and therefore there had been "substantial compliance" with the law governing filing notices of appeal.

Mrs. Land denied categorically the Communist party of Ohio is opposed to a republican form of government, advocates a dictatorship of the proletariat and adheres to the principles of the Third Nationale.

She was specifically questioned on these points by Judge Edward C. Turner.

"This party is one hundred per cent behind the government," Mrs. Land said. She also asserted the manner in which the anti-Communist law had been passed by the legislature was a "shameful procedure."

Constitutionality of the law was challenged by the Lands on grounds of discrimination and denial of due process of law.

The court indicated it would render a decision soon.

SEES WAR'S END

Predicting the war would end "probably in 1942 and unquestionably in 1943," Chairman Andrew J. May (above) (D-Ky.) of the house military affairs committee said in Washington there would be no need for the army to induct married men or youths in the 18 and 19 year group. The information on which he based the prediction, he told reporters, was a "military secret."

Writer Previews Possible Tactics for Second Front

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
Wide World War Analyst

Public anxiety over the prospects of a second front in Western Europe naturally has increased as the result of the dangerous position created by Hitler's million-men onslaught in Russia's Don River zone.

Many inquiries are coming my direction, all wanting to know how an invasion of the continent would be carried out.

In this connection, one recalls the recent remark of a British naval officer, that "I can promise you the invasion will not come in the way everyone expects." It presents a new problem, for no comparable operation has been carried out under conditions of modern warfare. It seems safe to say it will be one of the most dangerous and difficult undertakings in all military history.

We know in advance that the anxious Hun is forearmed. The position was succinctly described the other day by a German high command spokesman: "We are expecting an invasion at any time. Let them try it. We are ready."

The whole occupied coastal area, from Norway clear down through France, has been heavily fortified. A network of strategic railways has been built. The Nazis have even brought up big guns from France's Maginot Line.

The preliminary to any invasion must be a terrific aerial bombardment of all enemy coastal positions, to destroy defenses and force the enemy air fleet farther inland from their airdromes. The British say the Nazi defenses won't stand up under the punishment they will get.

Next would come the movement of troops. Where landings would be undertaken certainly is a matter of speculation. They might be made anywhere and the location would depend on circumstances. Probably numerous landings would be attempted simultaneously along the channel coastline, perhaps avoiding the strongly held Boulogne-Dover area until it could be outflanked.

Pioneers must go ahead to establish beach-heads, and what force could be better fitted for that work than the commandos, both British and Yankee? With them must go technicians and workers who will create facilities for the disembarking of the main invasion forces, prepare landing fields for warplanes, and what not. That will be a nasty job, in the face of fierce resistance by superior forces. That's where the combined Anglo-American airforce will come in, for on the airmen must fall largely the initial defense of the early landing-forces.

With the establishment of beach-heads the main invasion forces would be rushed across the channel. Probably a million men, American and British, would be moved onto the continent in due course. As a guess, five thousand barges, maybe more, would be employed, each carrying fifty or so fully equipped soldiers. There also would be barges for tanks and artillery and other mechanical equipment.

The barges with their precious freight would proceed under a vast canopy of air power. They would be escorted by naval strength. These troops must be equipped to take care of themselves for several days, maybe a week, while the main supplies are moved. Only after the troops have established themselves and prepared airdromes for Allied planes, can the armada of supply ships be started for the continent. The battle for airdromes will be fierce.

While all this is going on, the people of the occupied countries presumably will have risen and be striking at the Germans in every way they can. Some arms will be provided for them by the invading Allies.

When the invasion comes, it will be a titantic fight in which many men must die on land, on sea and in the air. The coastline and channel will be a blazing hell.

With technical and financial aid from the United States an agricultural experiment station will be established in Peru to develop production of rubber, quinine and other materials.

NAZI BASES USED TO RAID SHIPPING HIT

Russian Bomb Attacks Aimed at Protecting Supply Line.

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, July 10 — Bombing German airdromes in northern Norway and Finland, the Red air force has inflicted heavy new damage on the bases from which German planes have been raiding ports and shipping of the Arctic supply line to Russia, war front dispatches reported today.

The raids followed the Russian torpedoing of the powerful German battleship Tirpitz as it led a cruiser and destroyer force in an attempted attack on an Allied convoy bringing Russia supplies from England and the United States, the Russian accounts said.

A strong German air fleet based in northern Norway and Finland repeatedly has struck at such convoys and at Murmansk and other cities through which American and British arms are flowing to the Red army.

German airdromes in a number of northern districts were attacked in an effort to cripple such operations, the Russians said.

One force of Russian planes, striking simultaneously at several airports, was said to have destroyed 30 German bombers and fighters, damaged 27 others, burned a hangar and damaged a warehouse.

The Russians said none of their own planes was lost.

MOSCOW

Hundreds of thousands of Russian soldiers—veterans and reserves—were marshaled in the defense efforts.

The Soviet information bureau disclosed at midnight that the triangular invasion salient stretching 120 miles eastward to the Don near Voronezh was expanding roughly in the shape of a square with fighting southward in the Rossosh region.

"During July 9," it said, "our troops continued stubborn battles to the west of Voronezh and in the area of the town of Rossosh."

Volga manufacturing centers and Caucasus oil were described officially as the Nazi goals in an exhortation to Soviet soldiers to hold their ground at any cost.

"Not one more step backward," the army newspaper Red Star urged. "We cannot afford to yield another yard of Soviet soil."

At the same time the information bureau said heavy German losses had "compelled the Hitlerite clique to withdraw considerable forces from France and dispatch them to the east."

The main supply line of Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's southern front forces, the Moscow-Voronezh-Rostov railway, apparently was imminently threatened if not already cut by German bombardments or demolition squads in the Rossosh region.

Rossosh (pop. 20,000) lies on the railway about 20 miles west of the curve which starts the Don's vast sweep to the southeast. The river, a 1,325-mile waterline of defense, cuts through the steppes within 40 miles of Stalingrad and the Volga before turning southwestward to empty into the Azov sea below Rostov.

Rossosh is 200 miles due north of Rostov and 100 miles below Voronezh. It is 150 miles directly east of Kharkov, the old steel center converted by the Germans into a keystone headquarters of the southern front.

(The communique did not disclose the jumping-off point for the Rossosh push, but the Germans had won an arc of bases on the Kharkov front curving up from Kupyansk, 90 miles southwest of Rossosh, to Staryi Oskol, 100 miles northwest.)

Russians Pursued, Nazis Report

By The Associated Press

BERLIN (from German broadcasts), July 10—Russian forces in retreat are being pursued on a broad front in the south by German and German-allied troops, the high command reported today.

"In the southern sector of the eastern front, pursuit of the retreating enemy is being continued on a broad front by German and allied troops," a communique said.

"Local resistance was broken. Enemy attacks, supported by tanks, to relieve pressure northwest of Voronezh, broke down with heavy casualties."

"Strong formations of bombers and light bombers assisted in repelling the enemy's diversionary attacks and successfully attacked retreating Soviet columns massed in large concentrations at some wrecked bridges," the communique stated.

The Russians repeated their attacks north and northwest of Orel with strong infantry and tank forces but were repulsed in a hard battle, followed by a German counter-attack that "sealed off" local breaches the Russians had made, the high command said.

It listed the number of Russian tanks destroyed in the southern front fighting at 390.

EXPERIENCE COUNTS

By International News Service

FORT WORTH, Texas — It doesn't happen only in the comics, as was demonstrated by Eva Marie Wiley of Fort Worth. An instructor in a first aid class, Miss Wiley was teaching a group to work with a stretcher when she collapsed. Benefitting from her earlier training, a member of the class calmly called an ambulance while others balanced her on the stretcher and went out to wait at the curb for the ambulance to arrive. A few minutes later hospital surgeons diagnosed the case as appendicitis to operate.

P. S. Miss Wiley insisted on having a local anesthetic so she could watch the operation, just in case at some future time the exigency of the moment might be a rush appendectomy and no doctors about to perform it.

SENATE PLANS MORE LIMITATIONS ON OPA

Would Stop Henderson from Blocking Increases.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 10—Members of a senate appropriations sub-committee were reported fashioning today a financial straitjacket which might keep Price Administrator Leon Henderson from blocking sharp increases in the prices of such staple commodities as bread and canned vegetables.

Likely to be offered in the form of a limitation, the proposal would prohibit the use of any of this year's OPA operating funds to place ceilings on processed agricultural articles that did not reflect the 110 per cent of parity fixed by congress as the lowest point at which Henderson could step in and control prices.

Senator Thomas (D-Okla.) said an amendment of this nature was certain to be offered to the $1,300,000,000 supplemental appropriations bill now before the committee.

The committee has heard complaints this week from farm organizations that in his efforts to curb rising living costs Henderson has ruled that bread, for instance, does not fall within the field where congress prescribed the administrator's authority.

Henderson has made no attempt to control the price of wheat, since it remains below 110 per cent of parity, a figure calculated to give farmers a return equal to that of a past period, usually 1909-14.

But the farm representatives were said to have protested that ceilings placed on bread and other such processed commodities ignored a section of the price control act which states that prices fixed for processed articles must reflect the 110 per cent parity figure. The result was, they argued, that the prices of basic crops were kept down contrary to congress' expressed wishes.

LITERALLY FELL FOR HIM

Happy Bridegroom Recalls Events Leading to Marriage.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., July 10—Samuel B. Ridenour, a happy bridegroom at 80, recalled today that his wife, 67-year-old Mrs. Anna Cummins, really "fell" for him. They were married yesterday after a 30-day, whirlwind romance.

Mrs. Cummins fell and hurt her ankle at Ridenour's home a month ago when she went there to use the telephone. Then, Ridenour said, he called on her to see how the ankle was, and "I kinda fell for her and she fell for me." Mrs. Cummins came here from Gary, Ind., to visit a niece. Her husband died five years ago. Ridenour has been a widower three years.

Asked about the speedy romance, Ridenour said: "I don't like to fiddle around."

2,500 See Final Little Grand Circuit Harness Program

Bob Vallery of Urbana Wins Five of Nine Races.

By LOREN W. TIBBALS
Marion Star Sports Editor

BOB VALLERY, veteran Urbana reinsman, added a stirring chapter to Marion harness racing annals last night at the county fairgrounds before an estimated 2,500 attendance in booting five winners across in six races of the final program of the 1942 Little Grand Circuit meet.

Vallery, who only last Saturday registered his first heat victory of the young racing season, is the standout driver of the meeting as a result of his miraculous work in last night's finale. In 34 starts during the two-week meet, the Urbana driver finished in front six times, nine times in second and once third. Ernie Smith, veteran Washington C. H. trainer and driver, won eight races but finished second fewer times than Vallery.

In a recent campaign at Buffalo raceway, Hamburg, N. Y., Vallery failed to win a single heat. Bad breaks, and bad acting horses threatened to extend this losing streak in the local meet.

Stake Race Winner

Joe C. Abbe, a bay gelding owned and driven by Clinton Lightbill of Ottawa, Ohio, copped the $500 featured three-year-old pace stake race in straight heats. The gelding was clocked at 2:11½ for the first mile. He clipped one second off this mark in the second heat to nose out Nelda Hanover owned by C. H. Hayes of Columbus and driven by Bellefontaine's Benny Sturgeon. He was forced to go only 2:16 to take the third heat.

Joy Win, a bay mare owned by Brady Brothers of Payne, Ohio, and driven by Vallery, annexed the 2:17 trotting event, winning the first two heats and finishing second in the third heat to Sammy Boy, a chestnut gelding owned by M. J. Slaine & Son of Van Wert and driven by Sturgeon. Joy Win's best time was 2:12½. Sammy Boy won the third heat in 2:12.

Vallery's bay gelding, Abbe Cheer, won the 2:15 pacing event in straight heats.

Top payoff in pari-mutuel betting last night was on Joe C. Abbe

KALIMKOFF SCORES WRESTLING VICTORY

Steele and Lipscomb Battle to Draw.

Ivan Kalimkoff successfully defended his undefeated status in last night wrestling program at the Armory arena in defeating Joe Ferona, Boston sailor.

Kalimkoff won the first fall with a body slam in 13 minutes. Ferona squared the match in 10 minutes with a slam but Kalimkoff won the deciding fall with a football kick in one minute.

Axel Madsen experienced little difficulty in downing Martino Angelo in the first end of a double-semi-final bout. The lanky Danish slat won the first fall with a shoulder butt and body press. He was awarded the second fall when Angelo was disqualified for questionable tactics.

Jack Steele of Centersville, Ind., and Buck Lipscomb of Indianapolis battled to a draw in the second semi-final match. Lipscomb, a newcomer to the local ring, won the first fall in flashy fashion with a wrist lock and body press in 17 minutes. Steele won the second fall on a drop kick and body press.

Wilson Lauds Lombardi as Best at "Picking Off"

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO — Jimmy Wilson, manager of the Chicago Cubs, rates Schnozola Ernie Lombardi of the Boston Braves as the best catcher he ever saw picking a runner off first base.

"I thought I was pretty good at that myself, but that was before I saw Lombardi," Wilson said.

Wilson should know.

"Big Lom is one of the best catchers in baseball," Wilson rambled. "And he can murder you with that big bat, too. He can do everything except run like a deer."

VIC FLEMING WINS $10,111 VILLAGE FARM STAKE

By The Associated Press

GOSHEN, N. Y., July 10—The senior division of the Village Farm stake for pacers, top today's Grand Circuit card at the Goshen raceway, and as in yesterday's two-year-old division elimination heats, will be required because of the size of the field.

Thirteen three-year-old pacers were named overnight for the $5,100 stake, heading the field is Court Jester, undefeated colt owned by Fred Egan and Rupe Parker.

The $7,675 Village Farm Stake for two-year-old pacers went to the favorite, Widow's Pride, owned by Sullivan and Mawhinney of Machias, Me., and driven by Vic Fleming. Widow's Pride won the first elimination easily but was all out in the final to win by a nose from Doc Parshall's colt, King's Counsel, which had finished third in the elimination dash.

Their Careers Are Unending

RED RUFFING

MEL OTT

BILL DICKEY

PAUL WANER

Some baseball careers seem to go on endlessly. Here are the majors' outstanding examples. Charley (Red) Ruffing, Yankee pitcher with more than 250 victories has more triumphs than any other active league hurler. If he can last three more seasons he may reach the select 300 circle. Paul Waner, now used mostly as a pinch-hitter for the Boston Braves, recently bagged his 3,000th hit, a figure reached by only a half dozen major leaguers. Bill Dickey, Yankee backstop, rolls up a new record every time he catches 100 or more games; this will be his 14th season he has done it. Mel Ott, Giants' new manager, pounded out a new all-time National League record for runs driven in this season when he hammered home his 1,583rd. When the records were rechecked, however, it was discovered Mel actually had surpassed Rogers Hornsby's old mark a year ago because Hornsby, it was revealed, had compiled a small part of his mark while with the St. Louis Browns.

Brilliant Pitching Features Play In Industrial Softball League

Brilliant pitching performances highlighted play in the Industrial softball league last night.

Best performance of the evening was turned in by Roy Everly, star twirler with the Hunkin-Conkey Construction Co. No. 2 team. Everly pitched one-hit ball in setting Holabird & Root down, 10-2, at the Marion Steam Shovel Co. diamond on Uncapher avenue. One of the two hits off Everly was a mighty homer by Ramsey. Air-tight fielding aided Everly. The winners completed a triple play in the fifth inning, their second of the season.

Pitcher Kunkle of the General Excavator allowed three hits in repelling S.W.O.C. 1949, 15-0, at Presidents field. Absence of Woody Walters, star S.W.O.C. flinger, hindered chances of the second-place shovel workers.

Bill Everly plastered an 8-2 Universal Cooler verdict on the Osgood team at Garfield park. Dillinger with two homers and Atkinson with one paced the winners' plate attack. Lewis bagged a homer for the losers.

"Fat" Millisor won an 11-3 decision for the Huber team over Millington and the Commercial Steel team at Lincoln. Millisor gave up eight hits, while Millington allowed nine.

The city softball commission has granted Smith Clothing Co. a protest over Hunkin-Conkey Construction Co. No. 1. The clothiers protested that two members of the Hunkin-Conkey team were ineligible because of membership with another team. The game in question was played June 22.

The two players will be automatically suspended from the Marion Softball association for the rest of the season unless they comply with orders of the commission.

Stellar Pitching Performances Highlight Major League Play.

By The Associated Press

With long rests behind all of them, pennant drives in front of them and artificial light around most of them, major league pitchers enjoyed one of their best days of the season yesterday.

As the teams returned to action after the three-day intermission for all-star games, both leagues produced some sparkling mound performances, including a four-hitter in 11 innings, four five-hitters and a trio of six-hit jobs, two of which still weren't good enough to win.

Five of the winners had the help of the arc lights last night, but the masterpiece of the day was the 11-inning stint of Charlie Wagner, who held the Detroit Tigers to four blows in pitching the Boston Red Sox to a 2-1 decision in broad daylight.

Newhouser Hurls 4-Hitter

Hal Newhouser, Wagner's opponent, pitched four-hit ball for 10 innings but yielded two singles in the 11th and Manager Joe Cronin inserted himself as a pinch hitter, bringing in Boston's winning run with a long fly.

The Red Sox needed the victory to stay within four lengths of the American league leading New York Yankees, who dropped the St. Louis Browns, 5-2. Hank Borowy kept his place at the top of the circuit's pitching ranks. It was the seventh triumph against one defeat for Borowy, who was aided by the long-distance clouting of Joe DiMaggio, Tommy Henrich and Charlie Keller against three Brownie hurlers.

White Sox Lose, 4-2

Buddy Blair helped Phil Marchildon of the Philadelphia Athletics whip the Cleveland Indians, 5-2, in a night game. Marchildon turned in a five-hitter. Blair lashed a home run and a triple.

In another night tilt, the Chicago White Sox dumped the Washington Senators, 4-2.

Whitlow Wyatt pitched and batted the Brooklyn Dodgers to a 3-2 decision over Johnny Vander Meer and the Cincinnati Reds. While Wyatt was notching his ninth victory against two defeats under the lights, the St. Louis Cardinals blanked the New York Giants, 9-0. Johnny Beazley shut out the Giants on six hits.

The Philadelphia Phils met a similar fate at Pittsburgh, where the Pirates whitewashed them, 9-0, in a night game for army and navy relief which drew 29,468 fans and a gate of $36,305.51. Rip Sewell handcuffed the Phils on five hits. The Boston Braves and Chicago Cubs played the longest game of the day, an afternoon affair that ended when Buddy Gremp smashed a home run in the 13th inning to give the Braves the nod, 4-3.

Snatches of Sports

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
Wide World Sports Columnist

NEW YORK, July 10—The Hale America game—or you can't catch the Yanks on one leg—starting the second half of the big-league season we can't find an important club, unless it's the Cards, that has a full squad of able-bodied players. Unless you count those batting slumps, the Yanks seem to be in the best shape, since Bill Dickey and Buddy Rosar are recovering from their leg injuries. The Dodgers' most prominent casualty is Dixie Walker, the peoples' cherce, but they're not getting much good out of Whit Wyatt. It might look pretty bad for the leaders if most of the other clubs weren't in just as bad shape.

Today's Guest Star—B. M. Atkinson Jr., Louisville Times: "viewing all the gold 'whirly' haas earned, he won't be retired to stud. They're going to put him in the vault at Fort Knox."

One-Minute Sports Page—Have you stopped to think that football is less than a month away? The Detroit Lions start training at Charlevoix, Mich., Aug. 5 and the Bears will be growling a few days later. Iowa claims the No. 1 golf fan in Roger Barnes of Burlington, who followed Denny Shute in an 18-hole exhibition hobbling around on crutches with his leg in a cast.

BLUES LIKELY TO PLAY ASSOCIATION ALL STARS SQUAD

Still Out in Front Despite 3 Straight Defeats; Birds Split Double.

By The Associated Press

Three straight defeats have cut Kansas City's lead to four games, but with only four contests left before the American Association All-Star game decision is made, there isn't much doubt that it will be the Blues against the rest of the league's aces in the mid-summer classic.

Kansas City, after losing last night to Minneapolis, 4 to 3, was spared seeing its margin trimmed to a bare three games when challenging Columbus split a doubleheader with Louisville. The Red Birds dropped the opener in 11 innings, 6 to 4, and then wrapped up the nightcap, 6 to 0.

The second game was a masterful piece of three-hit pitching by Preacher Roe, who walked only two Louisville players and fanned 10.

Milwaukee lost a chance to gain back some ground when it dropped the second game of a twin bill with St. Paul, 3 to 1, after winning the first, 2 to 0.

Johnny Marcum turned in a four-hit pitching job for Toledo to beat Indianapolis, 2 to 1.

SHE MADE THE CATCH

By The Associated Press

SUN VALLEY, Ida. — Here's Sun Valley's first fish story of the season, and it's a good one. It's a story about a trout who hooked a girl.

Delores Hegstrom, fishing at Magic Dam, pulled in a trout and discovered that her hook had never touched the fish. It had been hooked by a previous angler, had swallowed one hook, and still had another hook and piece of leader dangling from its mouth. The free hook caught on to the girl's hook, and that's how the "catch" was made.

By The Associated Press

DENVER — First prize in an art contest open to all Denver High school students was won by Bob Beauchamp, a football and basketball letterman at Manual High.

RACES

in the second race. The bay gelding returned $14.20 to persons holding $2 win tickets. The daily double paid $47.40 and the quinella returned $5.80.

Frank M. Foster, secretary of the Marion Trotting association, pronounced the meeting a great success both as a speed attraction and as a financial enterprise. Part of the proceeds from the sale of advance tickets will be donated to the Woman's board of the Marion City hospital to defray expenses of the board's baby clinic.

Race officials estimated attendance for the entire meeting at between 15,000 and 20,000 persons. The Fourth of July nine-dash card attracted about 3,000 persons and about 2,500 attended each of the week-day programs. Last Friday night's program was the only card to be postponed because of inclement weather.

Officials Listed

Officials for the meet were Steve Phillips of Xenia, starting judge; Wayne Groves of Pinehurst, N. C., presiding judge; and H. H. Hartman of Quakertown, Pa., associate judge.

O. J. Moreland was regular outrider for the meet. He was assisted by two youths part of the time. Carl Cool of near Marion lead the horses to the post in a show buggy pulled by Victory Bond, one of the few Marion county show horses. The buggy was a product of the Houghton Sulky Co.

Speaking in behalf of the board, Dr. John McNamara stressed the importance of the meeting in the care of babies of less fortunate families in the Marion area. The board, Dr. McNamara said, has been assured by Mr. Foster that the races will be held annually for the benefit of the clinic.

Many of the more than 215 horses quartered in all available space at the fairgrounds will be moved over the week-end to small community fairgrounds in Ohio and surrounding states. Many of the horses are expected to participate in the Ashley fair next week and the Richwood fair later this month.

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D

Recreation

THE STRAIN of living in wartime makes recreation in some form more than ever a necessity. The Puritan tradition which disapproved of idleness or wasting time has gone the way of most Puritan traditions. Psychiatrists have long known that recreation of some kind is an imperative part of the treatment not only of mental patients, but indeed a necessity for the balance of any sane man.

I am therefore interested in a bulletin from the Menninger Clinic of Topeka with various chapters written by psychiatrists in which they describe their own hobbies and recreations. One enthuses about horticulture, another about contract bridge, another about stamp collecting, another about classical music, another about dancing, another about chess, others about mask making, poetry, photography, bird study, etc.

The contract bridge advocate points out that there are 635,013,559,600 possible bridge hands that any one person might have dealt to him and even if a person should live a lifetime of bridge playing and hold the same hand twice, the other three hands would be different and anyway he wouldn't remember the first time, so in his opinion this is a good hobby because at least it won't run out on you. He believes that every air raid shelter should contain a deck of cards.

Each one of these enthusiasts has a great deal to say in favor of his own hobby. I may say, however, that the stamp collector and the classical musician have failed to convince me. I would like to be convinced by the dancing enthusiast but I have long since been warned by the promptness with which one of my dancing partners suggests that we "sit the rest of it out" that there is no use in my attempting to learn the Conga.

I am rather attracted to the chapters on maskmaking and poetry as hobbies. I would feel all right about photography and bird study except that when I pick a hobby, I want one during which I sit down. That is why I am in favor of the hobby of gasoline rationing. I hope it will get to the place where I can go home and sit down forever.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

L. G.:—What is the cause of constant sneezing during the day and at all seasons of the year?

Answer: Nazal infection either of the sinus or the nasal mucous membrance or perennial allergy from the presence of animals or house dust. I would suspect pet canaries, parrots, rabbits, cats, dogs and horses in that order, possibly a pillow stuffed with rabbit hair is the cause.

F. S.:—If a person has tuberculosis are deepbreathing exercises harmful?

Answer: Yes. One of the most important principles of treatment in tuberculosis is rest, especially reduction in the number of inspirations. Deep breathing simply tends to spread the infection from one part of the lung to the other.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

KATHARINE'S long years of rigid training served her well as she strove to smother her flaming anger against me for what she patently thought was an effort to keep her from going in search of her husband.

She spoke no word of reproach, but twisted out of my grasp and stood erect.

"I hardly think any one of you will try to keep me here by force," she said, "and unless you do me up I am starting now to search the hospitals."

She turned toward the door, but I flung myself past her, put my back against the door.

"Of course you are going to search the hospitals," I said. "I never meant to keep you from doing that. Nor would Dicky or dying that. Nor would Dicky or my father attempt to dissuade you! They can see as well as I that there is no possible argument to which you would listen."

Katharine Relents

"Then why did you try to keep me here?" she asked me.

"Simply because I did not want you to go on your search alone," I told her. "I knew you would not listen to me if I asked you to wait for a guard, so I sent a frantic summons for Dicky and my father. Please forgive me, dear."

In swift capitulation, she put her arms around me in a convulsive embrace.

"Forgive me, instead," she said, "but I know you understand. And now," as she turned to my father and Dicky, "I must tell you that while I do not in the least object to a guard, I can wait for one no longer than a few minutes."

"You will not have to wait at all," my father said. "Richard, please ask Adams to come here."

"I wondered how you managed it," she said. Then Dicky returned, followed by Adams.

"Is there any reason why you cannot leave the hotel immediately and accompany this lady for a tour of the hospitals, which may last all night?" my father asked.

"None at all," Adams replied quietly. "I am supposed to be on duty in the next suite, and nobody is to telephone me. But—you know, they will expect to have my breakfast sent up."

"You probably will be back for breakfast," my father said. "But if you are not I will order it, and receive it for you in the living room, saying that you have a headache and are lying down."

"That ought to hold them," Adams commented. "Now I'll get my hat and coat and come back ready to go."

While we went to the next suite I opened Katharine's suitcase and held it out to her.

"You'll want your purse probably," I told her, and she delved into the case and brought it up.

Spencer Gives Orders

"Mrs. Bickett will tell you where she wishes to go," my father told Adams, "but don't let her out of your sight for a minute. And if you think you are going to need help, telephone me here, using the code.

"I'll attend to everything," Adams said quietly.

Then my heart filled with relief, I gave a parting admonition to Katharine.

"Come back up here the minute you're finished," I said, and taking the apartment key from the desk, I put it into her hand.

"I'll go to bed, of course," I said "but you know how easily I waken and go to sleep again, so do not hesitate to wake me up when you come back into the apartment."

The Stars Say—

For Saturday, July 11

ALTHOUGH this day may be notable for much activity and swift developments it will take more than ordinary good sense, restraints and sound programs in order to sidestep adverse and conflicting situations. There are all sorts of intrigues, duplicities, pitfalls and subtle dangers to be alert to and fortified against. It may be necessary to mistrust friend as well as foe.

Those whose birthday it is may have to marshal all their sound sense, reason, good judgment and fortitude to offset certain menacing conditions arising from subtle, intriguing, treacherous and sinister forces, in which not only enemies but alleged friends are suspects. Be cautious in change, travel, with agents and in all writings and agreements.

A child born on this day while versatile, talented and original, may be easily victimized and imposed upon by subtle and sinister machinations.
